

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

countrymen, body, mind and soul. Cause them to see the real dangers which a blindly partisan press is either concealing or minimizing. Keep up your splendid defence of American interests, traditions and institutions. Thousands of us are looking to you to arouse the public to lead men to think for themselves and to weigh well the possible consequences of sacrificing American independence, even in answer to "the voice of humanity," as our idealist President seems bent upon doing. Can we not best serve humanity, in the future, as in the past, by keeping our independence inviolable? In the light of past history and the present world situation, how can any one urge so radical a change of our national policy, without the fullest, frankest discussion and investigation; not only by the treaty-making powers of our Government, but by the people at large?

Continue to turn on the white light of "pitiless publicity," Mr. Editor. Thousands of patriotic Americans are bidding you "God-speed."

M. G. W.

Shelby, Mississippi.

LOST—AN AMERICAN SOUL.

SIR,—Many of us who can say "Thank God, I—I also—am an American," believe that our birthrights and privileges can be preserved only through the courageous utterances of patriots like yourself. Most of us are sadly confused by the attitude of our self-appointed leader who, tempted by the lure of gaining the applause of the whole foreign world, seems to have lost his American soul. We thank you, Colonel Harvey, for your clearness of vision and fixedness of purpose, which will yet save America for Americans. May God speed the day!

C. H. BAYLESS.

Tucson, Ariz.